OUTLINES.

At Houston, Va., yesterday the jury in the case of Judge Loving, charged with the murder of Theodore Estes for the ruin of his daughter, returned a verdict of not guilty, the verdict was unanimous on the first ballot and was based on emotional insanity; the judge and his wife shed tears while expressing their gratitude——The government fiscal year, ended yesterday, shows a treasury balance of $91,287,375, the largest since 1890; the receipts were $665,306,184 and expenditures $578,376,709, the receipts from tariff customs and internal revenue taxes show considerable increases——At Boise, Idaho, yesterday, Morris Friedman, a former employe of a Pinkerton detective agency, was a witness for William D. Haywood, on trial upon the charge of murdering Governor Steuenberg; he testified that detectives working for the mine owners joined the miners' union and were elected to high offices which enabled them to spy on the miners ——At Schenectady, N. Y., yesterday a steel cylinder at a sandstone brick plant exploded, causing great destruction to property, killing two men, and skidding up the railroad track a distance of 500 feet——An exhaustive investigation into the cotton goods exports of England has just been completed for the government by William Whitham, Jr., of Charlotte, N. C., who brought back various samples of textiles for the benefit of American manufacturers; he will exhibit them in Charlotte, July 12 and 13 and in Greensboro July 14——In London yesterday S. F. Edge beat all automobile records, driving a 60 horse-power machine for 24 hours at an average of 66 miles an hour, at times running the machine 72 miles in an hour——Counsel for Harry Thaw will make an effort in New York tomorrow to have his next trial set for a hearing in October——Resolutions addressed by the Chambers of Commerce in Japan to President Roosevelt and American commercial bodies, indicate that manufactures of the United States will be boycotted unless Japanese are accorded better treatment here——Hon. Hoke Smith was inaugurated as Governor of Georgia yesterday——New York markets; Money on call nominal, time loans steady and very dull; spot cotton 10 points higher, closing steady at 13.25; flour dull and unchanged; wheat weak, No. 2 red 98 1-2 elevator; corn easy, No. 2, 63 elevator; oats steady, mixed 49 1-2; turpentine firm 60 to 60 1-2; rosin steady, strained common to good 4.50 to 4.60.

"Should a husband lie around the house?" a wife asks of a woman's magazine. Whether he should or not he doesn't hesitate to lie when he is cornered.

"Girls should be braced in order to keep their shoulders straight," says a doctor. However, when a fellow braces a girl with a view to matrimony she may straighten up and give him the cold shoulder.

Cotton blooms made their appearance in Scotland county June 26th. The crop there is said to be fine, as is always the case, for Scotland is one of the ideal cotton growing sections of the Carolinas.

People should see that nothing is done in restraint of their trade, and should also hold themselves in restraint and not monkey around too conspicuously in restraint of the other fellow's trade.

An Alabama man is being sued by his wife for $100,000 because she found in his pockets letters signed "Louise." Probably he feels like suing her for causing him great "mental anguish" by rummaging in his poekets where some of his friends are liable any day to slip a letter just for fun.

The Star missed the Mount Olive Tribune the past week. It was always a welcome visitor, but the fire wiped out the office completely and Editor Fred R. Mintz could do nothing in the face of such a calamity. However, he is making arrangements to have his paper printed and we will probably see it in some shape this week.

Chairman Knapp, of the Interstate Commerce Commission declares that it is his opinion that the world is growing more honest. What a cheerful optimist he must be, considering the fact that he is in a position where he hears of nothing but complaints about discriminations, combines, conspiracies, and all kinds of tricks and deviltry "in restraint of trade."

The Star differs in politics from the Winston Republican, but a fraternal spirit impels us to congratulate that paper upon its great improvement. It is now set by a linotype machine and printed on a Cox Duplex press, and as to typography and matter it makes a fine showing. Shutting our eyes to politics, we must say that the Republican is a vigorous and excellent newspaper.

THE STATE CAPITAL

Negro Gardener and Street Preacher Dead From Pick Wound in His Leg.

RALEIGH ALDERMEN CAUCUS

Mr. James S. Hooper, Commissioner to Reunion of Mecklenburg Declaration Signers — Military Notes of Local Interest.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., June 29.—David Clark, a negro gradener and street preacher here, stuck a pick into the calf of his leg this afternoon and died from loss of blood before a physician could reach him.

A caucus of the Raleigh aldermen has agreed on Frank Smithson for chief of the Fire Department. Dr. C. O. Abernethy, for city physician, and W. B. Snow for city attorney.

Charters are issued to the Merchants' Protective Association, High Point, capital $20,000, by C. C. Bennett and others, and the North State Liquor Company, Salilsbury, capital $20,000 by W. J. McDaniel and others.

Adjutant General Robertson issues a special permit for Company H, Second Infantry, N. C. N. G., Clinton, to leave Sampson county to participate in the Fourth of July celebration at Fayetteville.

Adjutant General Robertson said this morning that it has not been decided yet whether or not the Newbern or the Wilmington divisions, Naval Reserves will be included in the four divisions that will be ordered to the Jamestown Exposition with the State troops during North Carolina week, August 12 to 16. However, it is very probable that they will both be included, if they desire to go.

Col. A. H. Arrington, private secretary to Governor Glenn, gave out the statement this morning that Mr. Jas. S. Hooper, of Wilmington, will act as vice president on the part of North Carolina for the re-union of the descendants of signers of the Declaration of Independence, to be held at the Jamestown Exposition July 4th. The other delegates named by the Governor are Mrs. Hellen B. Wills, Raleigh; D. B. Cooper, Norfolk.

The appointment of Mr. Hooper is regarded as especially fitting, as his great grand-father, William Hooper, of New Hanover, was one of the original signers. He lived on the Sound near Wilmington and was a close friend and an associate of Cornelius Harnett.

Editor Fred R. Mintz, of the Mt. Olive Tribune, is in the city to make a contract with one or another of the printing establishments here for the printing of his paper until his new plant is installed, his entire equipment, including office records, having been destroyed by fire recently.

Arrested Bad Negro.

Officer I. F. Huggins at Fourth and Nixon streets yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock arrested Fred Hooper, a big railroad negro fireman who resisted manfully, requiring the help of bystanders for the officer. He was charged with disorderly conduct, but after his conduct in fighting the officer a charge of resisting was also lodged against him. Messrs. J. A. Karr, Jas. Elkins and John Ahrens are among the witnesses summoned to appear Monday and testify against the negro.

BIG DOWNPOUR OF RAIN

Sheets of Aqua Pura Fell in Wilmington Yesterday Morning—Streets and Sidewalks Washed—Telephone Cable Broke.

For the twenty-four hours ending at 8 o'clock last night Wilmington and vicinity experienced possibly the heaviest downpour of rain recorded officially in the same length of time in several years. The heaviest of the torrent came after daylight yesterday morning and followed showers during the night continuing until about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The inches recorded by the weather bureau up to 8 o'clock last night were 3:31 increasing the precipitation for the month to 9:35 which is way above normal. The heavy rains were general throughout the country the records day before yesterday showing Savannah, Ga., 5.06 for the day; Thomasville, Ga., 3.36; Lake City, Fla., 3.02; Blacksville, S. C., 3.50; Weldon, N. C., 2.14; Charleston, S. C., 2.04; Greenwood, S. C., 2.04; Florence, S. C., 1.82; Newbern, 1.44; Goldsboro, 1.40 and others nearly as much.

The greatest damage in Wilmington was in the washing of streets and sidewalks. The ground was thoroughly saturated with water from the fall of the day before and many of the sand traps and gutters had been filled before the street force could clear up the trouble. When the sheets of water came down yesterday, it simply flooded the earth everywhere. The Consolidated car line tracks at the foot of the hill to the Carolina Central depot was washed up and a car started there to meet the train yesterday afternoon was wrecked by the spreading rails caused by the condition of the road bed after the floods of rain.

At the Sound and beach the rain storm was very pronounced. The Sound was rough and the storm resulted in the breaking of one of the telephone cables as a result of which the Sound and beach are cut off from communication with the city. A force of men was sent down immediately, however, and they hope to have the trouble remedied some time today.

VIOLIN AND PIANO RECITAL.

Delightful Affair Tomorrow Night in Lecture Room of Church.

Miss Elizabeth D. Burtt and Mr. Gustav Hagedorn will give a recital in the lecture room of the First Baptist Church Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock. As a pianist Miss Burtt has reached a position of prominence, and she possesses a highly cultivated sense of coloring in her touch as well as rythmic life. Her superior and conscientious work as a member of the music faculty of the Baptist University has been an historical milestone on the highway of musical education in the State. Mr. Gustav Hagedorn, the present conductor of the Raleigh Orchestra, was for five years one of the first violinists of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra. For the past year the violin department of the Baptist University has been under his direction, and his splendid achievements of this institution, and with the Raleigh Orchestra places him upon a high artistic plane and shows that he is a an able and conscientious pedagogue, and a well schooled musician.

Mr. Hagedorn on violin—king of instruments—produces a broad, full tone, and plays with great beauty and soulfulness. Those wishing to enjoy an evening of rare pleasure should not fail to attend this concert. There will be no charge for admission, but a silver offering will be taken for the church improvement fund.

MR. H. L. PETERSON

Passed Away Yesterday Morning After Many Months' Illness.

Many friends will learn with regret of the death of Mr. H. L. Peterson, who passed away at his home, No. 1006 North Front street, yesterday morning at 2:30 o'clock, after an illness of long duration. At the time of his death Mr. Peterson was 32 years old and leaves a father, Mr. George A. Peterson, of this city, a wife and two brothers, Messrs. Ernest E. and A. C. Peterson. Wilmington was his home from childhood and at one time he was a member of the volunteer fire department and later of the paid department.

The funeral services will take place at Market Street Church, conducted by Rev. W. L. Rexford, this morning at 11 o'clock and interment will be in Oakdale. The members of Wilmington Lodge No. 139, I. O. O. F., will be in attendance at the funeral and members of the other Odd Fellow lodges of the city are invited to be present.

Mr. R. C. Merritt to Remain.

There is much rejoicing in the business community at an order just issued by Captain Earl I. Brown under the terms of which Mr. R. C. Merritt will remain as engineer in charge of the lower Cape Fear government improvement. He was at one time transferred to the Beaufort station but strong pressure was brought by the business interests to have him remain with the work here and it is a source of congratulation for the community that Mr. Merritt is not to be transferred.

PLAY TO STANDSTILL

Monarchs and Giants Unable to Break Tie In Ten-Inning Game.

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE

Two Splendid Games at Hilton Park Yesterday Afternoon—Y. M. C. A. Drubbed the Rattlers—Three Games for Glorious Fourth.

Yesterday's Results.

Monarchs, 1; Giants, 1.
Y. M. C. A., 8; Rattlers, 1.

Standing of the Clubs.

	Won.	Lost	P. C.
Y. M. C. A.	5	0	1000
Rattlers	2	3	400
Giants	1	3	250
Monarchs	1	3	250

In spite of wet grounds and many other handicaps yesterday afternoon, two very fine games of baseball were played in the City League at Hilton Park. The Monarchs and Giants played to a standstill and at the end of the tenth inning, when both teams had to give way for the second line-up, the score was one to one. The Giants had scored in the third and the Monarchs in the seventh, but after that time it seemed an indefinite contest would have to be declared to settle the supremacy of the teams, which were at all times right in the game and down to hard work. In the second game of the doubleheader the Y. M. C. A. remained invincible, defating the Rattlers in the same score of eight to one as was administered to the Giants last Saturday afternoon. The feature of the second game was the fine work of Duls on the slab for the Association team. He was hit, but not effectively. In the first game the score was as follows:

The score:		R.	H.	E.
Giants	001 000 000	0—1	5	2
Monarchs	000 000 000	0—1	5	2

Batteries—Gore and Seifert; Green and Moore.

Summary—Struck out: By Gore, 6; by Green, 5. First base on balls: Off Gore, 1; Green, 1. Time, 1:20. Umpire, Mr. Davis.

The second game was begun at 5 o'clock and was played remarkably fast, considering the condition of the grounds. The Y. M. C. A. piled up four runs in the fifth inning, and that was a lead which the Rattlers could not overcome.

The score:		R.	H.	E.
Rattlers	001 000 000	—1	7	4
Y. M. C. A.	010 040 120	—8	6	2

Batteries—Alderman and Houston; Duls and King.

Summary—Struck out: By Alderman, 2; by Duls, 4. First base on balls, off Alderman, 2. Time, 1:15. Umpire, Mr. Davis.

On Thursday, the fourth of July, there will be three games during the day. In the morning at 9:30 o'clock the Rattlers and Giants will play an exhibition and in the afternoon at 3 o'clock the same teams will play a league game to be followed by still another between the Y. M. C. A. and Monarchs. These games will be well worth witnessing.

PARLOR CAR DITCHED

Wreck on Seaboard Air Line Yesterday Near Lumberton, N. C.

When the Charlotte train due here early yesterday afternoon rolled into the Seaboard Air Line shed forty minutes late, it was minus the parlor car recently put on this end of the line for the benefit of the beach travel. As the train pulled out of Lumberton yesterday afternoon and got well under headway the parlor car on the rear split a switch and went into the ditch on one side. Fortunately there were but few passengers in the car but it was a miracle how even they escaped. One man was slightly bruised about the groin and all were shaken up badly but none was seriously injured. The parlor car broke loose from the other train which ran some distance ahead before it was stopped. Captain Cullen Jones was in charge of the train and did what he could to relieve the situation, bringing the passengers on the regular coaches and arriving but 40 minutes late.

The First Cotton Bloom.

The "first cotton bloom" has made its appearance. It was sent the Star yesterday by Mr. John A. Stanton, merchant and planter near Clarkton. It was plucked from a hundred-acre field that Mr. Stanton says will average knee-high and did so on June 27th. Mr. Stanton is from the famous cotton growing section in Marlboro county, and knows how to grow the staple. He thinks his section in Bladen fully as good cotton land as that in Marlboro. An interesting statement in Mr. Stanton's letter is that he sold a good lot of his cotton the past week for future delivery at 11 1-4 cents. He is enthusiastic at the prospects for farming in this section of the State, and is of the type that succeeds.

Two Vagrant Women Arrested.

Officer C. E. Wood yesterday afternoon at Second and Brunswick streets arrested Estelle Davis, a negress, and Bertha Nelson, a white woman of low instincts, each of them being charged with vagrancy. They will be tried tomorrow noon at the Mayor's court.

AT THE GUN CLUB TRAPS

Unlucky Thirteen On the Grounds at Regular Shoot—Murchison Tournament Continues—Mr. Lyon Wins in Chicago.

An unlucky thirteen men again faced the traps of the Wilmington Gun Club at the regular shoot for the week ended yesterday. On account of the rain, high southwest winds and the "hoo-doo," the scores were low and there was very little interest in the contest. The main shoot was the second round for the Murchison trophy, Mr. George W. Penny still leading with 117 out of 150. Mr. George Harriss entered for the Peters trophy, which was practically completed last week, and made 17-25, in spite of the fact that he broke his gun, and had to complete the turn at the targets with a borrowed repeater. There were only three shooters in the regular club events for the day. These were Holmes, 21 out of 25; Stokley, 44 out of 50, and Dr. Jos. Hanby, 12 out of 25. The result in the Murchison contest was as follows:

	Shot at.	Broke.
Howell	50	18
Holmes	50	35
Penny	150	117
Fuchs	25	8
Stokley	125	96
Dreher	100	82
Bellamy, R. H.	125	87
Empie, B. G.,	50	30
Warren	75	58
Boushee	125	92
Boylan	75	48
Wessell	100	62
Bennett	100	42
Perdew	75	35
Jacobi Hdw. Co.	50	10
Truelove	25	14

On the afternoon of the fourth of July there will be a merchandise shoot of the club and all members are requested to be on hand for this event.

Members of the local club will be interested to know that last week in the great American tournament in Chicago Mr. George L. Lyon, of Durham, won the preliminary handicap in which there were 496 entries, the North Carolinian having broken 96 out of 100 targets at 19 yards. The trophy was a handsome loving cup valued at $100. In honor of his achievement, Mr. Lyon was tendered a banquet by the U. M. C. people.

THE RHOE DISSATISFACTION.

Ministers and Deacons of Colored Churches Endorse Dr. Hale.

(Communicated.)

Wilmington, June 28th, 1907.

Whereas, for the past few months, certain unfortunate differences have arisen in the First Baptist Church (colored), of the city of Wilmington, so serious in their nature as to create apprehension in the minds and hearts of all those having at heart the good of the Baptist faith and organization, whereas, the Rev. Fred. D. Hale, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church (white), of the city of Wilmington, and other white Baptists of this city, have, by request, and prompted solely by a Christian spirit and with the desire to restore harmony among the contending factions, labored day in and day out, often under most trying circumstances, and in the face of thoughtless criticism, to accomplish a just and equitable settlement; and, whereas certain thoughtless, biased or ill-disposed members of our race, have seen fit to criticize openly or by innuendo, the efforts of the Rev. Dr. Hale and his associates, now therefore, we, the ministers and deacons of the colored Baptist Churches of the city of Wilmington, do desire and do hereby put ourselves on record as most heartily appreciating the efforts of the Rev. Dr. Hale and his associates, and we unqualifiedly approve their course and counsels and commend their patience and the Christian spirit they have shown under the most trying circumstances. It is with deep regret that we see that their advice has not been followed or their counsels heeded, for had they been, we believe, the unfortunate differences would have been closed and the Rules and Church Government of the Baptist Churches would have been safeguarded against certain abuses which may sometimes arise. **

ADD RALEIGH

In the absence of Governor Glenn, Private Secretary A. H. Arrington announced this morning a reward of $100 offered for the arrest of John Dixon, alias Harrison Foreman, the negro charged with criminal assault on Mrs. Sapphire Scott, a highly respected woman seventy years old near Aycock's Church, Wilson county, Wednesday. The negro is described as being about 19 years old, rather black, five feet nine inches high, weighing 130 or 140 pounds with thin lips and high forehead. People in the vicinity of the scene of the crime are greatly stirred up over the affair and searching parties are scouring the country.

Newbro's Herpicide Display.

An attractive window display of the famous Newbro's Herpicide is being made at Hardin's Palace Pharmacy, on South Front street. THE RAILROADS WIN

First Blood In Injunction Proceedings Heard Before Judge Pritchard at Asheville.

THE ORDER IS CONTINUED

Final Decision in Case When Evidence in Chancery—Much Interest in Wilmington. Chancery—Much Interest.

(By Associated Press.)

Asheville, N. C., June 29.—A decision was rendered in the United States Circuit Court here this morning in the case of the Southern Railway and the Atlantic Coast Line against the North Carolina Corporation Commission to prevent the enforcement of the reduced, rate enactments of the recent State Legislature. Judge Pritchard announced that he would continue the injunction pending the taking of evidence by Judge Walter Montgomery, of Raleigh, standing master in chancery for the eastern division of North Carolina.

In giving his decision Judge Pritchard said: "I have not passed upon the constitutional question and cannot do so until the evidence taken by the master shall have been reported to me together with the findings of fact.

"I deem it my duty to say that in continuing the order restraining the North Carolina Corporation Commission from enforcing the proposed new rate until the final hearing, I have adopted ample and sufficient means to protect the interest of the public by requiring the railways, to file a bond to guarantee the payment into the court of a sum of money equal to the difference between the present rate and the proposed rate in the event that the act shall be declared constitutional.

"Owing to the fact that the questions involved in this controversy are of vital importance there should be speedy determination and I think this cause should be set down for final hearing not later than the first Monday in October."

The cases of the Southern and other roads against the Corporation Commission of Virginia will be heard Monday morning.

There was much interest in local railroad circles here yesterday upon the receipt of the news from Asheville, which came through the medium of private telegrams to Atlantic Coast Line officials. The proposed reduction in rates was to go into effect this mid-night and naturally the passenger departments of the railroads have been greatly exercised and have been rushed with preparations to comply with the law. Nothing could be definitely settled until the decision of Judge Pritchard was rendered. Tickets sold by the Atlantic Coast Line after midnight today will be accompanied by a receipt to the passenger for the difference involved pending the decision finally of the courts. This will be months ahead and a great deal of extra work is entailed on railroad men and passengers even themselves, who must preserve the receipt and present it for redemption in case the matter is decided in behalf of the lower rate. Mr. George Rountree, of Wilmington, was of counsel for the A. C. L. in the hearing before Judge Pritchard.

The Seaboard Air Line will put the lower rates in effect pending the litigation in which that company is involved and ticket agents all over the system are rearranging their schedules. There will be but one rate, all first-class. As an illustration of the difference the rate hereafter will be 7 cents to Navassa instead of 15 and 10 as heretofore; 17 to Phoenix instead of 25 and 20; Northwest 32 instead of 45 and 40; Cronly 38 instead of 55 and 45; Clarkton $1.01 instead of $1.45 and $1.25; Lumberton, $1.49 instead of $2.20 and $1.85; Maxton, $1.97 instead of $2.85 and $2.40; Hamlet $2.47 instead of $3.60 and $3.45; Charlotte, $4.20 instead of $6.10 and $5.15. While these figures are approximately correct they are enough to show that in future all ticket agents must be handy with their pennies. The new rate is very hard to handle by these already overworked men at the large stations.

Two Chinamen Jailed.

Justice G. W. Bornemann yesterday had before him Hopp Lee and Der Chung, almond-eyed children of the Flowery Kingdom, who conduct a laundry on Third street, nearly opposite the Court House. Yesterday afternoon Mr. H. McGodwin went to the "washee-washee" of the aforesaid Chinamen and asked for a package of his laundry for which no ticket had been given in the first instance, the proprietor telling the customer that he would know him when he came back. Hopp Lee attempted to attack Mr. Godwin and a warrant was issued for his arrest. When Deputy Sheriff Cox went to arrest Lee Der Chung dipped in and interfered with the officer and both were carried before the magistrate, who committed them to jail in default of $25 and $100 bonds, respectively, for preliminary hearing Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

MOVEMENT TO SAVE OUR MILLIONS.

President C. C. Moore, of the North Carolina Division of the Southern Cotton Association, and Mr. A. J. McKinnon, of Maxton, chairman of the executive committee of the North Carolina division, addressed the business men of Wilmington on Thursday night in behalf of the plan to organize cotton holding companies or bonded warehouse companies for storage of cotton in order to withhold it from market at critical periods when the price is unreasonably depressed. All must admit that when the South's cotton crop is sold at less than it is worth, and in many instances without profit, it brings disaster to the agricultural, commercial and banking interests alike. It is not sufficient that we should swap dollars in the raising and selling of our cotton crop, but if we shall get the benefit of our resources in the way of enriching instead of impoverishing the South, the crop must be sold at a profit. In other words, we must accumulate something on our cotton as an asset, else it is worth nothing to us to build upon, and it is with a view to making the South's cotton bring all it is worth that the Southern Cotton Association is endeavoring to organize cotton holding companies.

It is to be hoped that Messrs. Moore and McKinnon made such an impression upon Wilmington's business men as to enlist their earnest co-operation in the plan. It is a simple business proposition in which all interests are concerned, and while the plan no ...ubt offers profit to the immediate ...ckholders of the holding companies, ...far reaching effect will be that will benefit the whole country and its interests and industries.

...t is not necessary here to go into ... details of the warehouse plan, for ...t is a matter which those interest... in it can settle themselves, either on the plan of the Southern Cot... Association or a better one, if it possible to devise it. What The ...ar wishes to do, therefore, is to ...phasize the importance and neces...y that some such plan should en... the earnest attention and co-op...ation of business men. Every man ...o has given thought to the matter marketing the cotton crop, realizes ...at some plan must be devised to ...event the great loss, annually sus...ined by the South because of the ...le of cotton early in the season for ...e liquidation of obligations of far...ers and country merchants.

The able executive committee of ...e Southern Cotton Association has ...evoted much time and thought to ...is matter, and being men who are ...miliar with conditions in the Cot...on Belt, the business and farming in...erests should carefully consider the ...lan proposed by this committee. The ...merican and foreign speculators, ...nowing that "debt" cotton will be ...orced on the market, are always on ...and to take this cotton at the low...st possible price. In order to free ...he South from such a situation it is ...roposed to organize buying compa...ies throughout the South, if possible, ...t every cotton market, to have ...uyers at these local markets who ...hall in September and October, offer ... fraction or few points in advance ...of the speculators' price, cotton thus bought to be placed in bonded warehouses and there kept until natural consumption of mills will create a demand for it.

Provision is also to be made for advancing money to farmers and merchants on cotton they may store in the warehouse to be held for the natural demand of the manufacturer.

For stored cotton a certificate receipt will be issued, giving the name of the owner, the grade, the marks and the weight of cotton in storage, and the receipt or certificate being from a bonded and responsible company will be negotiable at any bank. Such certificates will be a lien on the cotton in storage (bonded and insured) and they can be placed with banks as collateral for loans or disposed of outright to loaners who will evidently find it more profitable than to buy cotton futures.

It is impossible to so organize the masses who grow cotton, that it is against the material interest of the South to market a year's crop in 90 days. It is possible, however, to organize the intelligent grower and intelligent business man into co-operating and combining for the purpose of buying the debt burdened or distress cotton. It is the early rush of cotton to market in such tremendous volume that destroys the price at a period when we should be getting our profit out of it. It is the farmer and merchant of limited means who are compelled to sell as early as the cotton is in hand and it is to take care of that cotton that the bonded warehouse is planned.

The warehouse movement being in its infancy, necessarily will go slow, but when we consider that this is the first practical or feasible undertaking ever attempted in the South, for the protection of the cotton crop, it is well for every one to consider the plan and give their help to make it perfect or to bring forth an improved plan. We must admit that up to this movement the business man in the South has given little thought to the marketing of the cotton crop, and yet the volume of his business depends entirely upon the price of cotton. Seventy-five per cent. of the world's supply of cotton is produced in the Southern States of the United States, and 75 per cent. of this is exported from the United States and annually sold to foreign spinners at an advance of many millions of dollars above the price paid to the grower.

The Southern Cotton Association will endeavor to make it possible to market cotton as needed by spinners and have the millions of dollars heretofore lost, remain in the South.

At the meeting in Wilmington Thursday night a committee of good business men was appointed to present the plan and enlist the interest of the business men of the city. That committee consists of Messrs. W. B. Cooper, Wm. E. Springer, W. M. Cumming, S. P. McNair, and William Gilchrist. It is to be hoped that they will receive the zealous co-operation that is needed to make the movement a success.

The movement is simply one to keep our wealth in hand after we have made it and not allow others to reap where we have sown.

CURRENT COMMENT.

—"You can't teach some politicians anything except by a crack on the head at election time," says the Baltimore Sun. The President thinks an occasional crack between times works pretty well.—Washington Herald.

—Hon. "Jim" Griggs says that the Democratic presidential nomination will go to Bryan "if he wants it." Can anyone conjure up a picture of Col. William Jennings sprinting to escape such a cataclysm?—Greensboro Tar Heel (Rep.)

—The Florida Times-Union makes a bull's-eye shot when it declares that the President, if he wishes to make a record for national honesty, should recommend the return to the South of "that special tax on cotton declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court." Justice and national honesty, like charity, should begin at home.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

—If two recent inventions, both by Southern men, prove to be all that is claimed for them danger from railroad travel in this country should in a few short years be reduced to a minimum. The first, mention of which was made in these columns a few days ago, is by an Atlanta man and consists of a device for preventing collisions, both head-on and rear-end. The second, the product of the brain of Mr. James T. Andrews, of Montgomery, Ala., is an appliance which, according to the opinion of old and experienced railroad men, will, we are told, render impossible wrecks from broken axles, broken journals, loose wheels, broken flanges ,spread tracks, irregular tracks or split switches. These two appliances cover all the most fruitful sources of accidents on American railroads. Should they prove successful and be generally installed on American railroads, the resultant saving of life and property will be almost incalculable. Let us hope they will.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

TWINKLINGS.

—"Have you heard the news? X has bolted over the frontier and left a lot of debts behind him." "Well, I don't see how he could take them with him."—Krokodyl.

—The Certain Way: "Tell me," said the lovelorn youth "what'e the best way to find out what a woman thinks of you?" "Mary her!" replied Peckham promptly.—Philadelphia Press.

—Can't Stand the Noise: Miss Schreechers—They say mice have such a fine ear for music. Miss Quick—But you're not troubled with them in this house, are you?—Detroit Free Press.

—She longed for a new hat. So she began to worry her husband for a new dress. He—A new dress! Can't afford it. If you wanted gloves, or a new hat, I wouldn't mind. But a new dress! She—Well, dont' get flurried, dearest! You know I always give in. So just buy me a new hat.—Voine Zarty.

CHAPTER VIII.

A SUMMER hotel that boasts a thousand acres of forest, more or less, which serve the purposes of a back yard, affords its guests, even if all its multitude of rooms are occupied, at least one spot for each visitor to regard as his or her favorite nook. So large an extent of woodland successfully defies landscape gardening. It insists on being left alone, and its very immensity raises a financial barrier against trimly kept gravel walks. There were plenty of landscape garden walks in the immediate vicinity of the hotel, and some of them ambitiously penetrated into the woods, relapsing from the civilization of beaten gravel into a primitive thicket trail, which, however, always led to some celebrated bit of picturesqueness—a waterfall, or a pulpit rock outstanding like a tower, or the fancied resemblance of a human face carved by nature from the cliff, or a viewpoint jutting out over the deep chasm of the valley, which usually supported a rustic summer house or pavilion where unknown names were carved on the woodwork—the last resort of the undistinguished to achieve immortality by means of a jackknife.

Dorothy discovered a little Eden of her own, to which no discernible covert way led, for it was not conspicuous enough to obtain mention in the little gratis guide which the hotel furnished, a pamphlet on coated paper filled with half tone engravings and half extravagant eulogies of what it proclaimed to be, an earthly paradise, with the rates by the day or week given on the cover page to show on what terms this paradise might be enjoyed.

Dorothy's bower was green and cool and crystal, the ruggedness of the rocks softened by the wealth of foliage. A very limpid spring, high up and out of sight among the leaves, sent its waters tinkling down the face of the cliff, ever filling a crystal clear lakelet at the foot, which yet was never full. Velvety and beautiful as was the moss surrounding this pond it was nevertheless too damp to form an acceptable couch for a human being unless that human being were brave enough to risk the rheumatic inconveniences which followed Rip Van Winkle's long sleep in these very regions, so Dorothy always carried with her from the hotel a featherweight, spider's web hammock, which she deftly slung between two saplings, their light suppleness giving an almost pneumatic effect to this fairy net spread in a fairy glen, and here the young woman swayed luxuriously in the relaxing delights of an indolence still too new to have become commonplace or wearisome.

She always expected to read a great deal in the hammock, but often the book slipped unnoticed to the moss and she lay looking upward at the little disks of blue sky visible through the checkering maze of green leaves. One afternoon, deserted by the latest piece of fictional literature, marked in plain figures on the paper cover that protected the cloth binding one dollar and a half, but sold at the department store for $1.08, Dorothy lay half hypnotized by the twinkling of the green leaves above her, when she heard a sweet voice singing a rollicking song of the civil war and so knew that Katherine was thus heralding her approach.

"When Johnny comes marching home again,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll give him a hearty welcome then,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
The men will cheer, the boys will shout,
The ladies they will all turn out,
And we'll all feel gay
When Johnny comes marching home."

Dorothy went still further back into the history of her country and gave a faint imitation of an Indian war whoop to let the oncomer know she was welcome, and presently Katherine burst impetuously through the dense undergrowth.

"So here you are, Miss Laziness," she cried.

"Here I am, Miss Energy, or shall I call you Miss-applied Energy? Katherine, you have walked so fast that you are quite red in the face."

"It isn't exertion; it's vexation. Dorothy, I've had a perfectly terrible time. It is the anxiety regarding the proper discipline of parents that is spoiling the nervous system of American children. Train them up in the way they should go, and when they are old they do depart from it. There is nothing more awful than to own parents who think they possess a sense of humor. Thank goodness, mother has none!"

"Then it is your father who has been misbehaving?"

"Of course it is. He treats the most important problem of a woman's life as if it were the latest thing in Life."

Dorothy sat up in the hammock.

"The most important problem? That means a proposal. Goodness gracious. Kate, is that insurance man back here again?"

"What insurance man?'

"Oh, heartless and heartbreaking Katherine, is there another? Sit here [illegible] the hammock beside me, and tell [illegible] all about it."

"[illegible], thank you," refused Katherine. "I weigh more than you, and I cannot risk my neck through the collapse of that bit of gossamer. I must take care of myself for his sake."

"Then it is the life insurance man whose interests you are consulting? Have you taken out a policy with him?'

"Dear me, you are nearly as bad as father, but not quite so funny. You are referring to Mr. Henderson, I presume. A most delightful companion for a dance; but, my dear Dorothy, life is not all glided out to the measures of a Strauss waltz."

"True. Quite indisputable, Kate, and those sentiments do you credit. Who is the man?'

"The human soul," continued Katherine seriously, "aspires to higher things than the society columns of the New York Sunday papers and the frivolous chatter of an overheated ballroom."

"Again you score, Kate, and are rising higher and higher in my estimation. I see it all now. Those solemn utterances of yours point directly toward Hugh Miller's 'Old Red Sandstone' and works of that sort, and now I remember your singing 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home.' I therefore take it that Jack Lamont has arrived."

"So here you are, Miss Laziness," she cried.

"He has not."

"Then he has written to you?"

"He has not."

"Oh, well, I give it up. Tell me the tragedy in your own way."

For answer Katherine withdrew her hands from behind her and offered to her friend a sheet of paper she had been holding. Dorothy saw blazoned on the top of it a coat-of-arms and underneath it written in words of the most formal nature was the information that Prince Ivan Lermontoff presented his warmest regards to Captain Kempt, U. S. N., retired, and begged permission to pay his addresses to the captain's daughter Katherine. Dorothy looked up from the document, and her friend said calmly:

"You see, they need another Katherine in Russia."

"I hope she won't be like a former one, if all I've read of her is true. This letter was sent to your father, then?"

"It was, and he seems to regard it as a huge joke. Said he was going to cable his consent, and as the Consternation has sailed away he would try to pick her up by wireless telegraphy and secure the young man that way. Suggests that I shall have a lot of new photographs taken, so that he can hand them out to the reporters when they call for particulars. Sees in his mind's eye, he says, a huge black lettered heading in the evening papers, 'A Russian Prince Captures One of Our Fairest Daughters,' and then insultingly hinted that perhaps, after all, it was better not to use my picture, as it might not bear out the 'fair daughter' fiction of the heading."

"Yes, Kate, I can see that such treatment of a vital subject must have been very provoking."

"Provoking? I should say it was! He pretended he was going to tack this letter up on the notice board in the hall of the hotel, so that every one might know what guests of distinction the Matterhorn House held. But the most exasperating feature of the situation is that this letter has been lying for days and days at our cottage in Bar Harbor. I am quite certain that I left instructions for letters to be forwarded, but, as nothing came, I telegraphed yesterday to the people who have taken our house, and now a whole heap of belated correspondence has arrived, with a note from our tenant saying he did not know our address. You will see at the bottom of the note that the prince asks my father to communicate with him by sending a reply to the Consternation at New York, but now the Consternation has sailed for England, and poor John must have waited and waited in vain."

"Write care of the Consternation in England."

"But Jack told me that the Consternation paid off as soon as she arrived, and probably he will have gone to Russia."

"If you address him at the admiralty

Drink Beer

As a food and a tonic. Every component in good beer is good for you.

But be sure it is pure, else harm will be mixed with its healthfulness.

Beer aged insufficiently causes biliousness. That is why all Schlitz beer is aged for months in our cooling rooms.

Beer that's impure—not cleanly, not filtered, not properly sterilized—should be avoided.

That is why we spend more to insure absolute purity than we spend on anything else in our brewing.

Happenings and Doings In Society.

By G. N. H.

Miss Julia Bogart, of Greensboro, is an attractive guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Munson.

Mrs. John B. Cranmer, who has been on a pleasant visit to Chapel Hill, has been welcomed home by friends.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Chadbourn have returned from their wedding trip and will spend the Summer at Wrightsville.

Miss Bessie Loder is at Newport News on a visit to relatives and is greatly missed by a large circle of friends with whom she is justly popular.

Friends are expecting the return of Mrs. Elizabeth VanB. and Miss VanBokelen, and Mr. Spencer Nichols from New York about the middle of July.

Miss Sarah Addicks, of Raleigh, is the guest of the Misses Mary and Jane Meares on Market street. She is one of the popular visitors who will always be welcome.

Miss Nannie Biggs, of Williamston, and Miss Nemmie Paris, of Rocky Mount, who have been exceedinly popular guests of Miss Ella Jacobs, have returned to their home after most pleasant visits.

The new balcony at Lumina has been completed. Swings will be attached to the overhead beams for the benefit of children and the shade of the balcony will make a nice playground for the little folks.

Misses Edith Pou, of Raleigh, and Josephine Gilmer, of Waynesville, are attractive and popular visitors of Miss Annie Worth, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Worth, on Greenville Sound.

Mr. John Murchison left last week for Narragansett Pier, where he will be the guest of Mr. Lawrence Sprunt at the beautiful Summer home, Orton Place, of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sprunt.

Three of the new cottages on Wrightsville Beach were occupied last week. Mr. H. E. Bonitz took one, the family of Mr. George B. Myers, another, and Mr. and Mrs. M. F. H. Gouveneur the third.

It does not seem to be generally understood that tickets to the Beach are sold on all city cars. No matter where you take a city car, for the Princess street junction, ask the conductor for a ticket to the Beach and save a nickle. This bit of information is for the benefit of the public.

Miss Lina Wiggins will attend the Summer School at Chapel Hill and in the Fall will take up her residence in Reidsville, N. C., where she will go as one of the faculty of the high school of that town. Her friends will regret her departure from Wilmington, where she will always find warm welcome awaiting her.

Mrs. Fred E. Owen and daughter, Miss Julia, arrived last week and will spend some time with Mrs. William I. Gore. Mr. Owen's ship has been ordered to an extreme outpost in Alaska, and while he is stationed in the "wolly out yonder" Mrs. and Miss Owen will remain with relatives in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Parsley have moved to their Summer home on Masonboro Sound. Mr. Parsley says Masonboro not only is the garden spot of the earth, but was the site of the Garden of Eden, which he can prove as the trunk of the original apple tree is now standing there with Adam and Eve's initials carved in the bark.

• • •

Mr. William L. Jewett, a former Wilmington man who has for a number of years been a resident of Ocala, Fla., is here on a visit to his relatives and former friends. Mr. Jewett finds but few of the neighborhoods unchanged and is pleasantly surprised at the strides the old town has made.

"The Union" moved down to the Beach last week, occupying the Chadbourn cottage, which it acquired by purchase. "The Union" is composed of the boarders of Mrs. Anne DeRosset Harris, in town, and the name adopted is suggested by the little club formed in a pleasant vein. Only stockholders, however, can stay at the club, which will be presided over by Mrs. Harris for the Summer.

Friends will be grieved to learn that Miss Mary James of Greenville, N. C., who has been a guest of Miss Charlotte Fennell, was called home Friday by a telegram announcing the illness of her mother. Miss James, accompanied by her father, Col. F. G. James, who was visiting his sister, Mrs. Hardy L. Fennell, left Friday morning. It is hoped Mrs. James will soon regain her health and that Miss James will return to Wrightsville.

Carolina Beach was the scene of many pleasant parties during the past week and the large numbers who have gone down the river proved conclusively that the steamer Wilmington held attractions for those who wish to spend a quiet and pleasant day on the water. The moonlight runs were well patronized and the mid-week dance was a very attractive feature of the week's pleasures. Today the sacred concert will be given at the Beach and next Thursday, the Fourth of July, will be a gala day, with music and dancing all day in the pagoda.

The house party which was to have been given by Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Holloway at their home on Fifteenth and Market streets in compliment to Miss Amoret Lord, has been postponed, very much to the regret of Mr. and Mrs. Hollaway, who had planned to give the house party a royal time. One of the causes for the postponement is the sickness of Miss Maria Tucker, who was to have accompanied Miss Lord on her return, which is expected in the next day or two.

Friends have received the following beautifully engraved announcement:

Mrs. George Davis Parsley announces the marriage of her daughter
Susan LeRoy
to
Mr. James Ozborn Carr
on Tuesday, June the eighteenth nineteen hundred and seven
Wilmington,
North Carolina

The hot days of the past week are driving many to the beaches. The hotels are filling up and all the attractions are in full swing. The bathing pavilions, bowling alleys and pool rooms, shooting gallery, soft drink stands, pop corn booths, ice cream cone wagons, doll and knife racks are reaping rich harvests of nickles. With dancing and music all the time, sailing and fishing parties constantly, bowling contests and bathing one passes happy hours at the hotels and at Lumina.

A very elaborate euchre party was given in Charlotte Tuesday morning, by Misses Helen and Anna Forbes Liddell, in compliment to their guest, Miss Lina DeRosset, of this city. Of the eighty guests invited were the following, who are pleasantly known in this city: Miss Norma VanLandingham, Miss Leonora Seay, Miss Bessie Burkheimer, Miss Sarah Brockenbrough, Miss Nettie Dockery, Miss Louise Jones, Misses Lucy and Julia Robertson, Misses Marguerite and Blandina Springs, Miss Lula Taliaferro and Mrs. Thos. W. Wright.

Miss Mary Thomas, Martinsville, Va.; Miss Mitchell Waddill, Carthage; Miss Alice Franklin, Durham; Miss Nan Goodson, Kinston; Miss Emeth Tuttle, Rocky Mount, and Messrs. Gilbert Ford, Wilmington; J. A. and Mat Long, Roxboro, and L. G. Daniels, Wanchese, and Miss Julia Minor, Oxford, who were of the Craft-Lucas bridal party, left Wednesday to attend a house party given by Mr. Henry A. Page, Jr., at his Summer home at Jackson Springs. They were the recipients of many attentions while here and carry pleasant recollections of Wilmington and Wrightsville Beach with them to their homes.

A musical recital of a high order of talent will be given in the lecture room of the First Baptist Church tomorrow evening. There will be no admission, but a silver offering is expected. The recital will be piano and violin together, and separately. When it is stated that Miss Elizabeth Burtt and Mr. Gustav Hadadon will give the recitals this bare announcement is sufficient to impress one with the superiority of the numbers which will be given. Miss Burtt's is too well known in the musical world to dwell on, and a word about Mr. Hadadon is all that is necessary. He will accompany Miss Burtt.

Last Saturday evening a beach party was given in compliment to fair visitors and on Monday afternoon a river boating party was given in their honor. The party was a merry light hearted one, whom Wilmington will always be pleased to welcome, and that they enjoyed to the fullest every minute of their stay is the wish of all who will be pleased to meet again Misses Julia Minor, of Oxford; Nan Goodson, Kinston; Emeth Tuttle Rocky Mount; Alice Franklin, Durham; Mitchell Waddill, Carthage; Mary Thomas, Martinsville, Va., and Lois Lucas, Charlotte. The gentlemen of the party were Messrs. Gilbert and Osborne Ford, Albian Pleasants, Swift M. Boatwright, James Charles-Craft and Mr. Henry A. Page, Jr.

CONTINUE THEIR WHITE SALE

Messrs. Platt & Haar Will Have Two More Days of Popular Week.

Messrs. Platt & Haar, proprietors of The Little Store, announce that they will continue their white sale two days longer. It has been very popular and on account of the unfavorable weather last week many of their patrons sent word they were unable to visit the store. The two more days of this sale which has attracted so much attention, will give them an opportunity to take advantage of the fine offering made.

On Wednesday something new and decidedly novel will be inaugurated in what will be known as "The Dollar Stretcher" Sale. Every dollar will count during this week and special values will be offered in every department. People have come to know what the announcement of a special sale means at this store and they are requested to watch for the inauguration of the "Dollar Stretcher."

A PRODUCE MERCHANT ON DOCK STREET PICKS A WINNER.

The Somach's Delight.

Heart's delight is that which affects the life pleasantly. So it is with that which makes the stomach feel good, in fact, has the happy faculty of making you not know you have a stomach. To a dyspeptic this would be joy, indeed, for he of all mankind knows he has a stomach and a disordered one at that.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets will make that stomach a delight instead of the opposite. They will do for him what they did for this Wilmington citizen.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablet Association, 53 and 55 Worth street, New York.

Gentlemen:

I have used Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets which I got at Dr. Green's and they helped me. I heartily recommend them to anyone suffering from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation; in fact, any ailment arising from the stomach.

THREE BOTTLES AND WHAT THEY DID FOR A VETINARY OF WILMINGTON.

The price of three bottles at Dr. Green's is $1.50 but the investment may be less if you buy one at a time, for they are mighty powerful curers of all stomach troubles as Verterinary J. D. Sidbury discovered, for he wirtes as follows:

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablet Association, 53 and 55 Worth street, New York.

Gentlemen:

"I cannot speak too strongly in praise of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets. About a month ago I got one bottle of these tablets at Dr. Green's Drug store, and as soon as I began using them, I noticed a marked improvement in my health. For almost two years I had been subject to frequent severe attacks of indigestion and had tried many remedies both in liquid and tablet form. My appetite was poor; felt distressed after eating, and had dizzy and fainting spells. I can honestly say that after taking only three bottles of your remedy, I am entirely cured of all my old troubles and shall deem it a pleasure to speak to all my friends about this splendid remedy. I thank you very much for all the good they have done me and wish you much success in this locality."

Yours truly,
J. D. Sidbury, Wilmington, N. C., corner Front and Dock streets.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets, 50 cents per bottle.

Dr. Richards' Laxocomfits, 25 cents per bottle.

The Magic No. 3.

Number three is a wonderful mascot for Geo. H. Parris, of Cedar Grove, Me., according to a letter which reads: "After suffering much with liver and kidney trouble, and becoming greatly discouraged by the failure to find relief, I tried Electric Bitters, and as a result I am a well man today. The first bottle relieved and three bottles completed the cure." Guaranteed best on earth for stomach, liver and kidney torubles, by R .R. Bellamy ,druggist. 50c.

NINE KILLED, 17 INJURED

Result of Train Wreck of Canadian Pacific.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Montreal, June 29.—Further particulars of the collision on the Canadian Pacific at Butler yesterday make the number of dead nine and injured 17. The killed were Guard O'Connor, of an eastbound Chinese special, and eight Chinamen. The injured consisted of five Canadians and twelve Chinamen.

GRAND RESULTS IN WILMINGTON DYSPEPTICS CHEER UP.

When the Stomach is Sick Take Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets—They invigorate.

The disastrous results brought about by indigestion are many. In fact the low vitality of your system from dyspepsia will render you a prey to any and all diseases known. Tone up your system and strengthen the tissues, and, ward off disease, by taking Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets and Laxocomfits.

says:

Mrs. Sidney, Wilmington, N. C., says:

"For the curing of stomach troubles, in my estimation, your remedy ranks first class in every way. It has cured me of a bad case of indigestion of long standing. The merits of Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets should be scattered broadcast, for they are certainly the best that I have ever taken, and I have tried many kinds. I heard of your tablets through an acquaintance, and procured a package of them at Green's Drug store recently, receiving more direct benefit than I ever thought possible. I consider it the best medicine in the world for stomach troubles and recommend it as such."

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets, 50 cents per bottle.

Dr. Richards' Laxocomfits, 25 cents per bottle.

He Fired the Stick.

"I have fired the walking-stick I've carried over 40 years, on account of a sore that resisted every kind of treatment, until I tried Bucklen's Arnica Salve; that has healed the sore and made me a happy man," writes John Garrett, of North Mills, N. C. Guaranteed for Piles, Burns, Etc., by R. R. Bellamy, druggist, 25s.

Store Decorations.

Everything is ready at Polvogt's for the big inventory sale. The store has been decorated with flags, with Polvogt's inventory sale July 1st to 10th printed on them. Goods have been displayed with price ticket on them. Cold weather this Spring has caused goods to lay, so the Polvogt Company, have cut the price, so as to make their merchandise move quickly. Double Trading Stamps will be given with every sale. Read their advertisement for the special hour sale in this issue. **

WORDS FITLY SPOKEN

When the Stomach is Out of Order the Mind, Body and Heart are Also Out of Order.

And life is not at its happiest and best. So much depends on a body free from dyspepsia and indigestion. Those who suffer know best the joy of a relief and the happiness of a what Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets did is well worth a perusal. It is home evidence right here in Wilmington, perhaps you personally know the lady.

Mrs. D. W. Willis 711 South Front street, Wilmington, N. C., says.

"This medicine cured me of a case of indigestion and stomach trouble when all other remedies failed. I got a bottle at Green's Drug store and the most beneficial results were obtained from them. It is the best medicine in the world.

Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets, 50 cents per bottle.

HOKE SMITH INAUGURATED.

Imposing Parade in Honor of Georgia's North Carolina Governor.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Atlanta, Ga., June 29.—Hoke Smith was inaugurated governor of Georgia at noon today. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice William H. Fish, of the Supreme Court, before the joint sessions of the two branches of the Legislature, which began its annual gathering this week. Governor Smith then delivered his inaugural address from a platform erected in the open air on the west front of the capitol.

The feature of the occasion was the parade of troops and citizens, escorting the Governor-elect from his home to the Capitol. The Fifth Georgia Regiment and two troops of the First Cavalry, U. S. A., besides numerous "Hoke Smith Clubs" from all parts of the State, and hundreds of citizens, joined the parade under General Clement A. Evans, marshal of the day. General Evans wore his uniform as brigadier general of the Confederate service, which he wore at the final surrender at the close of the Civil War.

Let us eat, drink and be merry,
With never a thought of ache or pain,
Let us forget every sorrow that might be
For we still have Rocky Mountain Tea.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE

—Kinston, N. C., June 28: A gentleman from Trent township, who was in the city today, said that the electrical storm was in much evidence out in that section Wednesday. At Mr. J. J. Barwick's it struck a tree near his house, ran along a clothes line to a post and passed on to another post which it tore all to pieces. It melted the wire from the tree to the first post and killed four hens and four small chickens. It did not injure the wire, however, from the first to the second post where it went off into the ground.

—Winston Republican: Some new veins of coal are said to have been found near Walnut Cove, Stokes County and also at Pine Hall, in the same county on the lands of the Consolidated Brick and Tile Company. Samples shown in this city seem to indicate a splendid grade of soft coal. The Brick and Tile Company, hope to secure enough of this useful fuel to operate their plant. Postmaster C. A. Reynolds exhibits at this office some samples of iron ore found on his farm, an Colfax, R. F. D. I. Guilford county. The specimens indicate a rich deposit of iron and Mr. Reynolds will have the ore analyzed to ascertain its true worth.

—High Point, June 28: The greatest number of suits ever instituted against the Southern Railway Company in this part of the country at one time had their beginning in High Point today. There are 181 such cases and the majority of them are actions to penalize the road for delays, with incident damages. Colonel Wescott Roberson represents the railway company and E. D. Steele has been employed by the Merchants' Claim Association and the N. C. Case Workers' Association. The hearing was postponed until next week. Out of the suits there are only 60 standing, the others having been withdrawn by manufacturers.

—Pembroke, June 28: A serious cutting affair took place at Pate's today during the closing exercises of the croatan normal school. W. E. Hall and C. W. Futch, a telegraph operator, were sitting in a buggy with their faces close together lighting cigars, Richard Thompson, a drunken Croatan, without any provocation, slipped up, cutting Futch from the eye across the face under the nose. Hall's face was deeply cut from the cheek, nearly severing the nose. His condition is serious from the loss of blood. He will be taken to the hospital at Lumberton. Considerable feeling is aroused among the people. Sheriff McNeill was telegraphed.

—Wilson, N. C., June 28:—Officers yesterday made an unsuccessful search for John Dixon, a negro, who committed an outrage on Mrs. Sapphire Scott, near Aycock's church, Wednesday morning. Several arrests have been made but the perpetrator of the crime has eluded pursuit. Solicitor C. C. Daniels took the matter in hand this morning and wrote Governor Glenn, asking that a reward be offered for the apprehension of the criminal. Yesterday an officer and a party of citizens went to search for Dixon in Black Creek township. They took several dogs. Soon they were beating around a reed marsh in the vicinity and saw a negro peering at them through the heavy undergrowth. When he found that he was discovered the negro beat a retreat ,but the dogs were hot on his trial. While he was beating them off the crowd surrounded him. Mr. Ben Dickerson had him covered and he was taken and tied. Search was made in the swamp when Mr. Mercer found a new clock, a valice that contained several new shirts and caps, a pair of suspenders and an old butcher knife. The prisoner was not the man they went in search of, but the constable says he believes that this negro, who gives his name as Will Smith, is a bad one. He was brought to Wilson and lodged in jail.

Remarkable Rescue.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes: "I was in bed, entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat, Doctors failed to help me, and all hope had fled, when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased; the bleding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work." Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds. 50c and $1.00 at R. R. Bellamy's drug store. Trial bottle free.

WHY IS SUGAR SWEET?

If sugar did not dissolve in the mouth you could not taste the sweet? GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC is as strong as the strongest bitter tonic, but you do not taste the bitter because the ingredients do not dissolve in the mouth, but do dissolve readily in the acids of the stomach. Is just as good for Grown People as for Children. The First and Original Tasteless Chill Tonic. The Standard for 30 years. Price 50 cents.

Be sure and visit Geo. O. Gaylord's Monday and see that 15c 40-inch white lawn for 10c yard. **

The Greensboro Keeley Institute!

The Only one in North Carolina

Note of Warning

To The Public:

The Keeley Cure has now been in successful operation for 28 consecutive years and the merits and reputation of the Dr. Leslie E. Keeley Remedies have been throughly established. Because of this fact, many imitators are seeking to turn this knowledge to their own advantage by falsely claiming that they are able to sell and administer our remedies and treatment. It should be borne in mind that the Keeley Remedies are only to be obtained at establishments known by the uniform name of The Keeley Institute. There is one or more of these establishments in nearly every State in the Union, besides several in foreign countries. THERE IS ONLY ONE KEELEY INSTITUTE IN THE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA, AND THAT IS LOCATED AT GREENSBORO. At all Keeley Institutes the remedies used are procured from our laboratory, and in all cases they are administered by physicians who have been especially instructed by us. It follows, therefore, that all other establishments claiming to be able to sell our remedies and administer our treatment are obtaining money under false pretenses and will be dealt with accordingly. The public is warned that under no circumstances can Keeley remedies or treatment be obtained except at authorized Keeley Institutes. These imitators sometimes adopt similar names to those by which our remedies are known, but if patients will take pains to see that they are in an authorized Keeley Institute they need not fear imposition. The Keeley remedies will cure inebriety, all kinds of drug using, the tobacco habit and neurasthenia; they are never administered in hospitals and no patients are treated at Keeley Institutes for other than the above named diseases.

THE LESLIE E. KEELEY CO.,
Dwight, Illinois.

THE KEELEY INSTITUTE, at Greensboro, N. C., is the only one in this State, and all representations that there is in this State any cure that is identical with or the same as the Keeley Double Chloride of Gold Cure, are malicious, false and made for the purpose of deceiving. We learn with indignant regret that such claim is being made, still feeling that if it be hurtful to us it will prove even more disastrous to those who are deceived thereby, we sound this note of warning.

course I am. You know that 57 ell, and I don't want any stupid prehension to arise at the begin- such as allows a silly author to y on his story to the four hun-dredth page of such trash as this." And she gently touched with her toe the unoffending volume which lay on the ground beneath the hammock.

"Then why not adopt your father's suggestion and cable? It isn't you who are cabling, you know."

"I couldn't consent to that. It would look as if we were in a hurry, wouldn't it?"

"Then let me cable."

"You? To whom?"

"Hand me up that despised book, Kate, and I'll write my cablegram on the fly leaf. If you approve of the message, I'll go to the hotel and send it at once."

Katherine gave her the book and lent the little silver pencil which hung jingling with other trinkets on the chain at her belt. Dorothy scribbled a note, tore out the fly leaf and presented it to Katherine, who read:

'Alan Drummond, Bluewater Club, Pall Mall, London:

Tell Lamont that his letter to Captain Kempt was delayed and did not reach the captain until today. Captain Kempt's reply will be sent under cover to you at your club. Arrange for forwarding if you leave England.

DOROTHY AMHURST.

When Katherine finished reading she looked up at her friend and exclaimed, "Well!" giving that one word a meaning deep as the clear pool on whose borders she stood.

Dorothy's face reddened as if the sinking western sun was shining full upon it.

"You write to one another, then?"

"Yes."

"And is it a case of"—

"No; friendship."

"Sure it is nothing more than that?"

Dorothy shook her head.

"Dorothy, you are a brick; that's what you are. You will do anything to help a friend in trouble."

Dorothy smiled.

"I have so few friends that whatever I can do for them will not greatly tax any capabilities I may possess."

"Nevertheless, Dorothy, I thoroughly appreciate what you have done. You did not wish any one to know you were corresponding with him, and yet you never hesitated a moment when you saw I was anxious."

"Indeed, Kate, there was nothing to conceal. Ours is a very ordinary exchange of letters. I have only had two—one at Bar Harbor a few days after he left and another longer one since we came to the hotel, written from England."

"Did the last one go to Bar Harbor too? How came you to receive it when we did not get ours?"

"It did not go to Bar Harbor. I gave him the address of my lawyers in New York, and they forwarded it to me here. Lieutenant Drummond was ordered home by some one who had authority to do so and received the message while he was sitting with me on the night of the ball. He had got into trouble with Russia. There had been an investigation, and he was acquitted. I saw that he was rather worried over the order home, and I expressed my sympathy as well as I could, hoping everything would turn out for the best. He asked if he might write and let me know the outcome, and, being interested, I quite willingly gave him permission and my address. The letter I received was all about a committee meeting at the admiralty in which he took part. He wrote to me from the club in Pall Mall, to which I have addressed this cablegram."

There was a sly dimple in Katherine's cheeks as she listened to this straightforward explanation, and the faintest possible suspicion of a smile flickered at the corner of her mouth. She murmured rather than sang:

"Well!"

"A pair of lovesick maidens we."

"One, if you please," interrupted Dorothy.

"Lovesick all against our will."

"Only one."

"Twenty years hence we shan't be
A pair of lovesick maidens still."

"I am pleased to note," said Dorothy demurely, "that the letter written by the prince to your father has brought you back to the Gilbert and Sullivan plane again, although in this fairy glen you should quote from 'Iolanthe' rather than from 'Patience.'"

"Yes, Dot, this spot might do for a cove in the 'Pirates of Penzance,' only we're too far from the sea. But, to return to the matter in hand, I don't think there will be any need to send that cablegram. I don't like the idea of a cablegram, anyhow. I will return to the hotel and dictate to my frivolous father a serious composition quite as stately and formal as that received from the prince. He will address it and seal it, and then if you are kind enough to inclose it in the next letter you send to Lieutenant Drummond it will be sure to reach Jack Lamont ultimately."

Dorothy sprang from the hammock to the ground.

"Oh," she cried eagerly, "I'll go into the hotel with you and write my letter at once."

Katherine smiled, took her by the arm and said:

"You're a dear girl, Dorothy. I'll race you to the hotel as soon as we are through this thicket."

CHAPTER IX.

THE next letter Dorothy received bore Russian stamps and was dated at the blacksmith's shop, Bolshoi Prospect, St. Petersburg. After a few preliminaries which need not be set down here Drummond continued:

"The day after Jack arrived in London, there being nothing whatever to detain him in England, we set off together for St. Petersburg and are now domiciled above his blacksmith shop. We are not on the fashionable side of the river, but our street is wide, and a very short walk brings us to a bridge which, being crossed, allows us to wander among palaces if we are so disposed. We have been here only four days, yet a good deal has already been accomplished. The influence of the prince has smoothed my path for me. Yesterday I had an audience with a very important personage in the foreign office, and today I have seen an officer of high rank in the navy.

"The prince warns me to mention no names, because letters, even to a young lady, are sometimes opened before they reach the person to whom they are addressed. These officials who have been kind enough to receive me are gentlemen so polished that I feel quite uncouth in their presence. I am a little shaky in my French and feared that my knowledge of that language might not carry me through, but both of these officials speak English much better than I do, and they seemed rather pleased I had voluntarily visited St. Petersburg to explain that no discourtesy was meant in the action I had so unfortunately taken on the Baltic, and they gave me their warmest assurances they would do what they could to ease the tension between our respective countries. It seems that my business here will be finished much sooner than I expected, and then I am off on the quickest steamer for New York in the hope of seeing Niagara falls. I have met with one disappointment, however. Jack says he cannot possibly accompany me to the United States. I have failed to arouse in him the faintest interest about the electric works at Niagara. He insists that he is on the verge of a most important discovery, the nature of which he does not confide in me. I think he is working too hard, for he is looking quite haggard and overdone, but that is always the way with him. He throws himself heart and soul into any difficulty that confronts him and works practically night and day until he has solved it.

"Yesterday he gave the whole street a fright. I had just returned from the foreign office and had gone upstairs to my room when there occurred an explosion that shook the building from cellar to roof and sent the windows of our blacksmith's shop rattling into the street. Jack had a most narrow escape, but is unhurt, although that fine beard of his was badly singed. He has had it shaved off and now sports merely a mustache, looking quite like a man from New York. You wouldn't recognize him if you met him on Broadway. The carpenters and glaziers are at work today repairing the damage.

"I told Jack that if this sort of thing kept on I'd be compelled to patronize another hotel, but he says it won't happen again. It seems he was trying to combine two substances by adding a third, and, as I understood him, the mixing took place with unexpected suddenness. He has endeavored to explain to me the reaction, as he calls it, which occurred, but I seem to have no head for chemistry, and, besides, if I am to be blown through the roof some of these days it will be no consolation to me when I come down upon the pavement outside to know accurately the different elements which contributed to my elevation. Jack is very patient in trying to instruct me, but he could not resist the temptation of making me ashamed by saying that your friend, Miss Katherine Kempt, would have known at once the full particulars of the reaction. Indeed, he says she warned him of the disaster by marking a passage in a book she gave him which foreshadowed this very thing. She must be a most remarkable young woman, and it shows how stupid I am that I did not in the least appreciate this fact when in her company."

The next letter was received a week later. He was getting on swimmingly, both at the foreign office and at the Russian admiralty. All the officials he had met were most courteous and anxious to advance his interests. He wrote about the misapprehensions held in England regarding Russia and expressed his resolve to do what he could when he returned to remove these false impressions.

"Of course," he went on, "no American or Englishman can support or justify the repressive measures so often carried out ruthlessly by the Russian police. Still even these may be exaggerated, for the police have to deal with a people very much different from our own. It is rather curious that at this moment I am in vague trouble concerning the police. I am sure this place is watched, and I am also certain that my friend Jack is being shadowed. He dresses like a workman. His grimy blouse would delight the heart of his friend Tolstoi, but he is known to be a prince, and I think the authorities imagine he is playing up to the laboring class, whom they despise. I lay it all to that unfortunate explosion, which gathered the police about us as if they had sprung from the ground. There was an official examination, of course, and Jack explained, apparently to everybody's satisfaction, exactly how he came to make the mistake that resulted in the loss of his beard and his windows. I don't know exactly how to describe the feeling of uneasiness which has come over me.

"At first sight this city did not strike me as so very much different from New York or London, and, meeting, as I did, so many refined gentlemen in high places, I had come to think St. Petersburg was, after all, very much like Paris or Berlin or Rome. But it is different, and the difference makes itself subtly felt, just as the air in some coast towns of Britain is relaxing and in others bracing. In these towns a man doesn't notice the effect at first, but later on he begins to feel it, and so it is here in St. Petersburg. Great numbers of workmen pass down our street. They all seem to know who the prince is, and the first days we were here they saluted him with a deference which I supposed was due to his rank, in spite of the greasy clothes he wore. Since the explosion an indefinable change has come over these workmen. They salute the prince still when we meet them on the street, but there is in their attitude a certain sly sympathy, if I may so term it, a bond of camaraderie, which is implied in their manner rather than expressed. Jack says this is all fancy on my part, but I don't think it is. These men imagine that Prince Ivan Lermontoff, who lives among them and dresses like them, is concocting some explosive which may yet rid them of the tyrants who make their lives so unsafe. All this would not matter, but what does matter is the chemical reaction, as I believe Jack would term it, which has taken place among the authorities. The authorities undoubtedly have their spies among the workingmen and know well what they are thinking about and talking about. I do not believe they were satisfied with the explanations Jack gave regarding the disaster. I have tried to impress upon Jack that he must be more careful in walking about the town, and I have tried to persuade him after work to dress like the gentleman he is, but he laughs at my fears and assures me that I have gone from one extreme to the other in my opinion of St. Petersburg. First I thought it was like all other capitals; now I have swung too far in the other direction. He says the police of St. Petersburg would not dare arrest him, but I'm not so sure of that. A number of things occur to me, as usual, too late. Russia, with her perfect secret service system, must know that Prince Lermontoff has been serving in the British navy. They know he returned to St. Petersburg, avoids all his old friends and is brought to their notice by an inexplicable explosion, and they must be well aware also that he is in the company of the man who fired the shell at the Rock in the Baltic and that he himself served on the offending cruiser.

"As to my own affairs, I must say they are progressing slowly, but satisfactorily. Nevertheless if Jack would leave St. Petersburg and come with me to London or New York, where he could carry on his experiments quite as well, or even better than here, I should depart at once, even if I jeopardized my own prospects."

The next letter, some time later, began:

"Your two charming notes to me arrived here together. It is very kind of you to write to a poor exile and cheer him in his banishment. I should like to see that dell where you have swung your hammock. Beware of Hendrik Hudson's men, so delightfully written of by Washington Irving. If they offer you anything to drink, don't you take it. Think how disastrous it would be to all your friends if you went to sleep in that hammock for twenty years. It's the Catskills I want to see now rather than Niagara falls. Your second letter containing the note from Captain Kempt to Jack was at once delivered to him. What on earth has the genial captain written to effect such a transformation in my friend? He came to me that evening clothed in his right mind in evening rig out, with his decorations upon it, commanded me to get into my dinner togs, took me in a carriage across the river to the best restaurant St. Petersburg affords, and there we had a champagne dinner in which he drank to America and all things American. Whether it was the enthusiasm produced by Captain Kempt's communication or the effect of the champagne, I do not know, but he has reconsidered his determination not to return to the United States, and very soon we set out together for the west.

"I shall be glad to get out of this place. We were followed to the restaurant, I am certain, and I am equally certain that at the next table two police spies were seated, and these two shadowed us in a cab until we reached our blacksmith's shop. It is a humiliating confession to make, but somehow the atmosphere of this place has got on my nerves, and I shall be glad to turn my back on it. Jack pooh poohs the idea that he is in any danger. Even the governor of St. Petersburg, he says, dare not lay a finger on him, and as for the chief of police, he pours scorn on that powerful official. He scouts the idea that he is being watched, and, all in all, is quite humorous at my expense, saying that my state of mind is more fitting for a schoolgirl than for a stalwart man over six feet in height. One consolation is that Jack now has for America as I am.

I expect that the interview arranged for me tomorrow with a great government official will settle my own business finally one way or another. Awhile ago I was confident of success, but the repeated delays have made me less optimistic now, although the gentle courtesy of those in high places remains undiminished.

"Dear Miss Amhurst, I cannot afford to fall lower in your estimation than perhaps I deserve, so I must say that this fear which has overcome me is all on account of my friend and not on my own behalf at all. I am perfectly safe in Russia, being a British subject. My cold and formal Cousin Thaxted is a member of the British embassy here, and my cold and formal uncle is a cabinet minister in England, facts which must be well known to these spy informed people of St. Petersburg. So I am immune. The worst they could do would be to order me out of the country, but even that is unthinkable. If any one attempted to interfere with me, I have only to act the hero of the penny novelette, draw myself up to my full height, which, as you know, is not that of a pygmy, fold my arms across my manly chest, cry, 'Ha, ha!' and sing 'Rule Britannia,' whereupon the villains would wilt and withdraw. But Jack has no such security. He is a Russian subject, and, prince or commoner, the authorities here could do what they liked with him. I always think of things when it is too late to act. I wish I had urged Jack ashore at Bar Harbor and induced him to take the oath of allegiance to the United States. I spoke to him about that coming home in the carriage, and, to my amazement, he said he wished he had thought of it himself at the time we were over there.

"Whereupon the villains would wilt and withdraw."

"But enough of this. I dare say he is in no real danger after all. Nevertheless I shall induce him to pack tomorrow, and we will make for London together, so my next letter will bear a British stamp, and I assure you the air of England will taste good to one benighted Britisher whose name is Alan Drummond."

CHAPTER X.

THE habit of industry practiced from childhood to maturity is not obliterated by an unexpected shower of gold. Dorothy was an early riser, and one morning, entering the parlor from her room, she saw lying upon the table a letter with a Russian stamp, but addressed in an unknown hand to her friend, Katherine Kempt. She surmised that here was the first communication from the prince and expected to learn all about it during the luncheon hour at the latest, but the morning and afternoon passed, and Katherine made no sign, which Dorothy thought was most unusual. All that day and the next Katherine went about silent, sedate and serious, never once quoting the humorous Mr. Gilbert. On the third morning Dorothy was surprised, on emerging from her room, to see Katherine standing by the table, a black book in her hand. On the table lay a large package from New York, recently opened, displaying a number of volumes in what might be termed serious binding, leather or cloth, but none showing that high coloring which distinguishes the output of American fiction.

"Good morning, Dorothy. The early bird is after the worm of science." She held forth the volume in her hand. Steele's "Fourteen Weeks' Course In Chemistry," an old book, but fascinatingly written. "Dorothy," she continued, with a sigh, "I want to talk seriously with you."

"About chemistry?" asked Dorothy.

"About men," said Katherine firmly, "and incidentally about women."

"An interesting subject, Kate, but you've got the wrong text books. You should have had a parcel of novels instead."

Dorothy seated herself, and Katherine followed her example, Steele's "Fourteen Weeks' Course" resting in her lap.

"Every man," began Katherine, "should have a guardian to protect him."

"From women?"

"From all things that are deceptive and not what they seem."

"That sounds very sententious, Kate. What does it mean?"

"It means that man is a simpleton, easily taken in. He is too honest for crafty women, who delude him shamelessly."

"Whom have you been deluding, Kate?"

"Dorothy, I am a sneak."

Dorothy laughed.

"Indeed, Katherine, you are anything but that. You couldn't do a mean or ungenerous action if you tried your best."

"You think, Dorothy, I could reform?" she asked breathlessly, leaning forward.

"Reform? You don't need to reform. You are perfectly delightful as you are, and I know no man who is worthy of you. That's a woman's opinion, one who knows you well, and there is nothing dishonest about the opinion, either, in spite of your tirade against our sex."

"Dorothy, three days ago, be the same more or less, I received a letter from John Lamont."

"Yes, I saw it on the table and surmised it was from him."

"Did you? You were quite right. The reading of that letter has revolutionized my character. I am a changed woman, Dorothy, and thoroughly ashamed of myself. When I remember how I have deluded that poor, credulous young man in making him believe I understood even the fringe of what he spoke about, it fills me with grief at my perfidy, but I am determined to amend my ways if hard study will do it, and when I next see him I shall talk to him worthily like a female Thomas A. Edison."

Again Dorothy laughed.

"Now, that's heartless of you, Dorothy. Don't you see I'm in deadly earnest? Must my former frivolity dog my steps through life? When I call to mind that I made fun to you of his serious purpose in life, the thought makes me cringe and despise myself."

"Nonsense, Kate. Don't go to the other extreme. I remember nothing you have said that needs withdrawal. You have never made a malicious remark in your life, Kate. Don't make me defend you against yourself. You have determined, I take it, to plunge into the subjects which interest the man you are going to marry. That is a perfectly laudable ambition, and I am quite sure you will succeed."

"I know I don't deserve all that, Dorothy, but I like it just the same. I like people to believe in me even if I sometimes lose faith in myself. May I read you an extract from his letter?"

"Don't if you'd rather not."

"I'd rather, Dorothy, if it doesn't weary you, but you will understand when you have heard it in what a new light I regard myself."

The letter proved to be within the leaves of the late Mr. Steele's book on chemistry, and from this volume she extracted it and pressed it for a moment against her breast with her open hand, gazing across at her friend.

"Dorothy, my first love letter!"

She turned the crisp, thin pages and began:

"'You may recollect that footnote which you marked with red ink in the book you so kindly gave me on the subject of catalysis, which did not pertain to the subject of the volume in question and yet was so illuminative to any student of chemistry. They have done a great deal with catalysis in Germany, with amazing commercial results, but the subject is one so recent that I had not previously gone thoroughly into it.'"

Katherine paused in the reading and looked across at her auditor, an expression of despair in her eloquent eyes.

"Dorothy, what under heaven is catalysis?"

"Don't ask me," replied Dorothy, suppressing a laugh, struck by the ludicrousness of any young and beautiful woman pressing any such sentiments as these to her bosom.

"Have you ever heard of a catalytic process, Dorothy?" beseeched Katherine. "It is one of the phrases he uses."

"Never. Go on with the letter, Kate."

"'I saw at once that if I could use a catalytic process, which would be instantaneous in its solidifying effect on my liquid limestone, instead of waiting upon slow evaporation, I could turn out building stone faster than one can make brick. You, I am sure, with your more alert mind, saw this when you marked that passage in red.' Oh, Dorothy," almost whimpered Katherine, leaning back, "how can I go on? Don't you see what a sneak I am? It was bad enough to cozen with my heedless, random markings of the book, but to think that line of red ink might have been marked in his blood, for I nearly sent the poor boy to his death."

"Go on, Katherine; go on, go on!"

"'In my search for a catalytic whose substance would remain unchanged after the reaction I quite overlooked the chemical ingredients of one of the materials I was dealing with, and the result was an explosion which nearly blew the roof off the shop and quite startled poor Drummond out of a year's growth. However, no real harm has been done, while I have been taught a valuable lesson—to take into account all the elements I am using. I must not become so intent on the subject I am pursuing as to ignore everything else.' And now, Dorothy, I want to ask you a most intimate question, which I beg of you to answer as frankly as I have confided in you."

"I know what your question is, Kate. A girl who is engaged wishes to see her friend in the same position. You would ask me if I am in love with Alan Drummond, and I answer perfectly frankly that I am not."

"You are quite sure of that, Dorothy?"

"Quite. He is the only man friend I have had, except my own father, and I willingly confess to a sisterly interest in him."

"Well, if that is all"—

"It is all, Kate. Why?"

"Because there is something about him in this letter, which I would read to you if I thought you didn't care."

"Oh, he is in love with Jack's sister, very likely. I should think that would be a most appropriate arrangement. Jack is his best friend, and perhaps a lover would weaken the influence which Tolstoi exerts over an emotional person's mind. Lieutenant Drummond, with his sanity, would probably rescue a remnant of her estates."

"Oh, well, if you can talk as indifferently as that, you are all right, Dorothy. No, there is no other woman in the case. Here's what Jack says:

"'It is amazing how little an Englishman understands people of other nations. Here is my tall friend Drummond marching nonchalantly among dangers of which he has not the least conception. The authorities whom he thinks so courteous are fooling him to the top of his bent. There is, of course, no danger of his arrest, but nevertheless the eyes of the police are upon him, and he will not believe it, any more than he will believe he is being hoodwinked by the foreign minister. What I fear is that he will be bludgeoned on the street some dark night or involved in a one sided duel. Twice I have rescued him from an imminent danger which he has not even seen. Once in a restaurant a group of officers, apparently drunk, picked a quarrel and drew swords upon him. I had the less difficulty in getting him away because he fears a broil or anything that will call down upon him the attention of his wooden headed cousin in the embassy. On another occasion, as we were coming home toward midnight, a perfectly bogus brawl broke out suddenly all around us. Drummond was unarmed, but his huge fists sent sprawling two or three of his assailants. I had a revolver and held the rest off, and so we escaped. I wish he was safely back in London again.' What do you think of that, Dorothy?"

"I think exactly what Mr. Lamont thinks. Lieutenant Drummond's mission to Russia seems to me a journey of folly."

"After all, I am glad you don't care, Dorothy. He should pay attention to what Jack says, for Jack knows Russia, and he doesn't. Still, let us hope he will come safely out of St. Petersburg. And now, Dot, for breakfast, because I must get to work."

Next morning Dorothy saw a letter for herself on the table in the now familiar handwriting and was more relieved than perhaps she would have confessed even to her closest friend, when she saw the twopence-halfpenny English stamp on the envelope. Yet its contents were startling enough, and this letter she did not read to Katherine Kempt, but bore its anxiety alone.

Dear Miss Amhurst—I write you in great trouble of mind, not trusting this letter to the Russian postoffice, but sending it by an English captain to be posted in London. Two days ago Jack Lamont disappeared, a disappearance as complete as if he had never existed. The night before last, about 10 o'clock, I thought I heard him come into his shop below my room. Sometimes he works there till daylight, and, as when absorbed in his experiments he does not relish interruptions, even from me, I go on with my reading until he comes upstairs. Toward 11 o'clock I thought I heard slight sounds of a scuffle and a smothered cry. I called out to him, but received no answer. Taking a candle, I went downstairs, but everything was exactly as usual, the doors locked and not even a bench overturned. I called aloud, but only the echo of this barn of a room replied. I lit the gas and made a more intelligent search, but with no result. I unlocked the door and stood out in the street, which was quite silent and deserted. I began to doubt that I had heard anything at all, for, as I have told you, my nerves lately have been rather prone to the jumps. I sat up all night waiting for him, but he did not come. Next day I went, as had been previously arranged, to the foreign office, but was kept waiting in an anteroom for two hours and then told that the minister could not see me. I met a similar repulse at the admiralty. I dined alone at the restaurant Jack and I frequent, but saw nothing of him. This morning he has not returned, and I am at my wits' end, not in the least knowing what to do. It is useless for me to appeal to the embassy of my country, for, Jack being a Russian, it has no jurisdiction. The last letter I received from you was tampered with. The newspaper extract you spoke of was not there, and one of the sheets of the letter was missing. Piffling business, I call it, this interfering with private correspondence.

Such was the last letter that Alan Drummond was ever to send to Dorothy Amhurst.

Belle of Virginia BLENDED RYE

When a man goes for a drink of Belle of Virginia Whiskey he hurries because he knows he will have a fine drink, and when he comes away he smiles and smacks his lips because he has had it. Belle of Virginia is a blended whiskey—a rye whiskey carefully and scientifically blended from fine, pure, old whiskies. It's a really good honest article and to those who like a blended whiskey it will give satisfaction clear down to the ground.

Sold at the places where gentlemen go to get a drink.

This is a Safe Clothing Store

First, because every garment is made of the choicest fabrics in their respective grade.

Next, because prices are always safely lowest.

Last, and most satisfactory, because you can return the goods and get the money back, whether it's the fit, fabric, the color or anything else that induces you to change your mind.

And wonderfully few pieces of clothing come back to us. Perhaps it's because the clothes are so good, the styles so excellent, the fit so carefully formed, and the prices so pleasantly little.

Try Our $15, 18 or 20 Suits

By them you may judge this store. We never before sold such good clothing at those prices, nor have we ever shown such great variety. Choice of checks, plaids and stripes, in cassimeres, cheviots, valours and worsteds, besides blues and black. Yes, we guarantee every garmen just as good in all respects as though you had it made especially to your order, as good as though you paid half as much again. The clothing of no other store comes so near to custom work.

LOVING VERDICT WAS NOT GUILTY

Jury Unanimous on First Ballot and Was Out Only 45 Minutes.

BELIEVED JUDGE IS INSANE

He and His Wife Shed Tears While Expressing Gratitude to Jurymen. His Attorneys Argued for the Unwritten Law.

(By Wire to The Morning Star.)

Houston, Va., June 29.—After being in the jury room 45 minutes the jury this evening returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of former Judge Wm. G. Loving of Nelson county, and manager of the Virginia estate of Thomas F. Ryan, who was placed on trial here last Monday before the Circuit Court of Halifax, Judge Wm. R. Barksdale, presiding, for the murder of Theodore Estes, son of Sheriff M. K. Estes, of Nelson county. Judge Loving shot and killed young Estes on April 22, at Oak Ridge, following a buggy ride Estes had taken with the judge's daughter, Miss Elizabeth Loving, who told her father that her escort had drugged and assaulted her.

The jury retired at 4:45 o'clock and from that time until the verdict was returned the defendant remained in the seat he had occupied since the trial began, and was surrounded by the members of his immediate family, with the exception of his daughter Elizabeth, who was not present today. At 5:20 o'clock a loud rap was heard on the door of the jury room and Judge Barksdale, who had taken his seat on the bench, ordered the sheriff to preserve order and cautioned the large crowd that had remained not to give vent to their emotions when the verdict was announced. The verdict of acquittal was read by Foreman B. S. McGraw.

Judge Barksdale thanked the jurors for their attendance upon court at great sacrifices. He declared that he believed the verdict was in accordance with the conscientous views of the jury.

After the jury had been discharged, Judge Loving, his wife and other relatives shook hands with and thanked each juror. Tears streamed from the eyes of the defendant and his wife. Judge Loving was congratulated by many of his friends present, though in accordance with the warning of Judge Barksdale, there was no noisy demonstration.

Foreman McCraw, a merchant and farmer, said that when the jurors entered the room, one of them did not exactly understand all of the instructions of the Court, and these were read to him. Mr. McCraw said that when he called for a vote, he requested all who favored the acquittal of the defendant to hold up their right hand. On the first ballot every hand promptly went up. When asked what the basis of the verdict was, he said "insanity," and that he and the other members of the jury believed that Judge Loving was out of his mind at the time he killed young Estes. The stress he said, had been brought on by the story told him by his daughter.

The day was spent in argument, the forenoon session being taken up by counsel for the defense, and the closing speech for the prosecution being made this afternoon by Commonwealth Attorney Bouldin. Attorneys Barksdale, Moore and Lee, for the defense, spoke practicallay along the same lines. They pleaded for an acquittal on the ground that Judge Loving was insane at the time he killed Estes, having lost control of himself upon hearing the story of the ruin of his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Loving. They dwelt at some length on the testimony of the insanity experts and the excessive drinking of whiskey by the defendant some years ago, which it was claimed, had diseased his brain. The real basis of their argument, however, was the "unwritten law." They spoke of the preservation of the sanctity of Virginia homes, declaring that any man who invaded the threshhold and spoiled a woman had forfeited his claim on society. On this point Mr. Moore said:

"You would not raise the moral standard or elevate the womanhood of Virginia by conviction. Don't put the badge of dishonor on him by sending him to the penitentiady. Don't let it go out to the world that a jury of Virginia gentlemen put the felon's stripes on a Virginia gentleman."

Mr. Lee appealed strongly to the sympathies of the jury with both words and tears. "Sweep from Virginia the chaste homes of the citizens," he said, "and what remains of the State?" The purity and the dignity of our homes is the sweetest thing in life to Virginia. It is the gift of God. When any one invades our homes they strike society and the body politic the deadliest blow. You all know how love for your wife and how the smile of a daughter can bring out from your nature the best there is in it. My heart and my mind tell me, gentlemen of the jury, how you feel. I believe that when the foreman asks you to hold up your hands if you believe the prisoner not guilty that every hand will go up and that your act will be according to your conscientious opinion. When Christ departed his life his last words were "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do.'"

Commonwealth Attorney Bouldin, of Halifax county, in the closing address, ridiculed the insanity plea, calling attention to Judge Loving's deliberation before and at the time of the tragedy. He declared the evidence showed that the murder was an act of deliberation, and that it was committed after Judge Loving had ample time to reflect and realize fully the consequences. "In this case and all others," he declared in conclusion, "the guilty and the innocent suffer, alike, but you cannot measure their verdicts by sympathy. Judge Loving's is not the only stricken household." Mr. Bouldin spoke for an hour and three-quarters.

Judge Barksdale then placed in his instructions to the jury a section which had been objected to by the defense and was not included in the instructions as read. This instruction contained the statement, "the unwritten law has no recognition in this court." The defense contended that this was unnecessary, but it was inserted.

For the first time during the trial the women relatives of young Estes were in the court room.

John P. Swanson, of Danville, brother of Governor Swanson, and a brother-in-law of Theodore Estes, who was killed, issued the following statement tonight:

"The statement in the press today that M. K. Estes would qualify as an administrator of Theodore I. Estes, deceased, and enter suit against Judge Loving is a mistake. Neither Mr. Estes nor any member of the family ever contemplated a suit against Judge Loving. We had hoped that the court would admit the evidence of the Commonwealth as offered by Mr. Harmon, which would have vindicated Theodore Estes of the charge of assault and established the fact that no assault was committed."

The following statement was given out tonight by counsel for Judge Loving:

"Within half an hour after the rendition of the verdict by the jury and the adjournment of court, counsel for Judge Loving were called on by two of the jury who stated that they had been appointed a committee representing the entire jury to convey to Judge Loving and his wife and daughter the information that while they believed that Miss Loving's statement on the witness stand of what she had told her father was a true account of what she had communicated to him, yet, not for a moment did the jury entertain the opinion that actual assault had been committed by the deceased on the young lady, but on the contrary, they were all fully satisfied beyond all doubt that no actual assault had been committed, but that there had been an attempted assault. Counsel for Judge Loving, upon being interviewed in this connection, said:

"The conclusion of the jury to the effect of no assault was absolutely correct."

Judge Loving and his wife will remain here for several days before returning to their home in Nelson county.

Miss Elizabeth Loving will leave shortly for a visit to friends in a distant State, in order to escape the notoriety incident to the trial of her father.

GREAT SURPLUS FOR UNCLE SAM

Government Fiscal Year Ends With Treasury Balance of $91,287,375.

IS IS LARGEST SINCE 1890

Receipts During Year Were $665,306,184, and Expenditures $578,376,709—Receipts From Tariff Show Increase.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Washington, June 29.—So far as working purposes are concerned, the fiscal year of the government closed today with a surplus of substantially $87,000,000, one of the largest net balances ever shown. In the fiscal year 1902 there was a surplus of $91,287,375, but that was the largest since 1890.

While the official figures for the fiscal year will not be announced until Monday, the figures available today are approximately accurate. They show that in the year just closed the income from the various sources of revenue was $665,306,124, and expenditures $578,376,709, as compared with receipts of $594,454,121 for the last fiscal year, and expenditures of $568,784,799, the surplus in that year being $25,669,332.

There has been a tremendous increase in receipts in the year just closing, while the expenditures have been only about $10,000,000 in excess of the last year. The largest increase in receipts has been from customs, although internal revenue has shown a big gain.

The receipts from the different sources this fiscal year have been as follows:

Customs, $333,,230,126; internal revenue, $270,309,388; miscellaneous, $61,766,619. There has been no year in the history of the country in which the receipts from customs came within many millions of the present year. The receipts last year held the record up to that time, and this year's income from that source is about $33,000,000 in excess of last year.

Internal revenue receipts, likewise, break all records, except during the Spanish war, when special taxes were being collected.

UNWRITTEN LAW DANGEROUS

South Carolina Court Turned It Down Man Convicted.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Spartanburg, S. C., June 29.—William Mills, charged with the murder of Frank Deal, in Cherokee county, three months ago, was found guilty with a recommendation to mercy at Gaffney today. Mills claimed that he killed Deal, because he had ruined his home. His attorneys pleaded the "unwritten law," but the judge instructed the jury that this had no weight with the court and should have none with the jury. The case has attracted much attention.

DETECTIVES SPIED ON UNION MINERS

Trial of Wm. D. Haywood of Boise, Idaho For Steunenberg Murder.

PINKERTON MAN ON STAND

He Testified That Detectives Working for Mine Owners Joined Miners' Unions and Got Elected to High Offices.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Boise, Idaho, June 29.—Morris Friedman, a former employe of the Pinkerton Detective Agency at Denver, who published his adventures and many of the confidential reports and records that passed through his hands in an attack on the agency, was a witness today in behalf of William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of Governor Frank Steuenberg. Friedman told how the Pinkertons had sent spies into many of the important unions of the Western Federation of Miners. Friedman has a shock of black hair and is of marked Hebraic type. Heavy thick glasses magnify his dark eyes. By name and operating number, he identified a dozen detectives who succeeded in entering or getting close to miners' unions in Colorado. He produced voluminous copies of the reports they made to the agency for transmission to the Mine Owners. Friedman was a confidential stenographer under Detective McPhartland and, so he testified, it was part of his duty to re-copy the reports of the operatives as they reached the office. Friedman swore that in several instances the detectives, by the agency in behalf of the Mine Owners, got elected to high offices in the unions and in a couple of instances they carried their daring parts to the extent of sharing all the hardships of real strikers and being finally deported from the country with real strikers. Ten feet from Friedman's chair sat George W. Redell, who, as a Pinkerton detective worked up to leadership in the Telluride union. Turning to him, by direction of Clarence Darrow, the witness identified Redell, who smiled and touched his chest as Friedman pointed toward him.

Friedman said that one Pinkerton operative became chairman of the union strike relief committee an at Globeville and as such had charge of all of the funds and food disbursed there by the local union and general Federation. Friedman said that under instructions from his superiors at the Pinkerton agency this man first tried to beggar the Federation by the lavish expenditure in behalf of the strikers; and, failing in this, he cut the relief down to the lowest point of stinginess in the hope that the members of the union might censure Haywood.

Friedman was twice interrupted to give way to other witnesses and did not get beyond the identification and a brief sketch of each operative employed in the espionage of the Federation's strike operations and the identification of several of the confidential representatives. The latter were not read and will be offered in evidence Monday, when Friedman will continue his testimony. The examination did not disclose whether Friedman entered the employment of the Pinkertons as a spy in behalf of the labor organizations, or whether his decision to make public his knowledge and the documents he took was reached after he was employed.

Aside from the introduction of Morris Friedman, the defense also offered a large amount of testimony covering Orchard's credibility.

AUTOMOBILE RECORD BROKEN

Machine Averaged 66 Miles An Hour for 24 Hoas.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

London, June 29.—S. F. Edge, the automobilist, who started yesterday evening to drive a sixty horse-power car a round the new Brooklyn cement motor track at an average speed of 60 miles an hour for 24 hours, beat all records. At the end of 24 hours Edge's total distance was 1,581 miles, 1,310 yards. He not only carried out his declared intention of driving an average of 60 miles for 24 hours, but he added another six miles an hour to it. At times Edge reached 72 miles an hour. He was in splendid condition when he finished.

One Hundred Earthquake Shocks Felt at Portsmouth Yesterday.

(By Wire to the Morning Star.)

Portsmouth, N. H., June 29.—Earth tremblings that shook houses perceptibly at intervals were felt here today. Windows shook and rattled and bric-a-brac within dwellings clattered on the shelves. Sometimes half an hour would elapse between the vibrations, but before sundown one hundred shocks had been felt. The heaviest came between 5:15 and 5:45 P. M.
